

Dr. Sudha Shree Chandrashekar
Advisor

Dr. Sudha Shree Chandrashekar is a MBBS medical doctor (1998) with a master's degree in community medicine (2003, first rank) and a PhD in health economics (2015). She has 25 years of experience in medical, research and administration fields, with a focus on public health and health economics. She has worked with various stakeholders in India and abroad, including governments, academic institutions, international organizations, and private sectors. She has received several awards, scholarships, and grants for her research and teaching work. She has also published and presented her work in national and international journals and conferences. She is an associate fellow of higher education academy, University of London, UK and a member of several professional associations. She believes in teamwork, process, results, enjoyment and credit for all. Currently, she is an advisor for Health System Transformation Platform and a senior consultant for World Bank India and Ghana. She has also been involved in various policy initiatives and technical forums on health issues. Her biodata was published in Whos' Who in Medicine and Health care, 7 th edition 2009-10.